STEAM ENGINE FEATURED ON CNA CONVENTION MEDAL

Moncton, New Brunswick, the little city of 50,000 population and host to the Canada Numismatic Association, is known as the hub of railroads in the Canadian Atlantic Provinces. Today's modern "Iron Horse" still dominates commerce and industry as lumber, agriculture and marine food products are moved by rail from their place of origin to retail outlets in the far northeast.

Numismatist Howard Dyer of Moncton recently documented an interesting railroad accident that altered the distribution of Canadian coins 'way back in the year 1897.

Gary Littrell of Amarillo, founder of the "Canadian Large Cent Club" and his parents Glen and Amber Littrell of Corpus Christi, attended the 1983 CNA convention and a week later retraced the route of Old Engine #476 from Halifax, Nova Scotia to Moncton, New Brunswick.

It was at the fortress City of Halifax on January 26, 1897 that the Government of Canada received from the British Royal Mint a shipment of 1896 Canadian large cents. This shipment consisted of five and one-half tons of "coppers" consigned to St. Johns, New Brunswick and Montreal, Quebec. It took 80 boxes at 140 pounds each to contain these coins and the cent then had a value similar to a quarter today. There were some years that the only coin minted was the large cent. However, in 1896 both the nickel and the dime were minted.

The train consisted of the steam engine, a postal car containing mail, coins and several cars sufficient to transport the 40 passengers traveling cross country. The train moved north through Truro, across the Salmon River, around the Bay of Fundy and crossed into New Brunswick just above Amhurst. After passing through Sackville they headed down the grade toward Palmers Pond. it was a cold day and high noon when they approached the curve that circled the frozen pond. The train was rocking from right to left and the cargo was shifting. Passengers braced themselves for the inevitable as the train jumped the tracks and came crashing over the embankment onto the frozen surface.

Two of the passengers were killed and many injured. Emergency equipment (horse-drawn buckboards) from nearby farms carried the dead and injured to either Sackville or Dorchester for medical attention. Many boxes of coins spilled onto the ice and before authorities could

THE STORY BEHIND THE COIN

Lee Grossman,
San Antonio, Tx.

SPAIN'S GREATEST BOURBON KING — CAROLUS III

Did you know that the Bourbon family, the ruling line in France and several Italian states, almost missed out in Spain?

The War of the Spanish Succession was fought from 1701 to 1714 by the Grand Alliance (England, the Netherlands, Denmark, the Holy Roman Empire and Portugal) against a coalition of France, Spain and a number of small Italian and German principalities.

The issue of the war was the conflict over the legitimacy of the succession of Philip V, Duke of Anjou (the grandson of Louis XIV), to the Spanish crown. Also, the accession to the emperorship of Charles VI, who was also a claimant to the Spanish throne, altered European political relationships to the advantage of France.

All this because the Holy Roman Emperor, Joseph I, died in 1711 without a male offspring.

Peace negotiations were conducted between England and France. The peace terms were under the collective title of the Peace of Utrecht, which granted recognition to Louis' grandson as the King of Spain. This was, in effect, a repudiation of the claims of Charles VI, and he decided to continue the war against France and Spain. France won a number of easy victories, which resulted in the Holy Roman Empire making peace with France, but not with Spain, and getting possession of the Spanish Netherlands and various Italian principalities.

Like the Hatfields and the McCoys, the feud between the Hapsburgs and the Bourbons was a long-lasting one. In this case, the Bourbon line was the victor and the Hapsburg-Holy Roman Empire dynasty.

Charles VI was born in 1685 in Vienna, the son of the Holy Roman Emperor Leopold I. You may recall that Leopold was called "The Hogmouth" (probably not to his face!). The protruding lips were a Hapsburg characteristic and almost all of the Hapsburgs had this trait. When Charles II, King of Spain, died without an heir in 1700, Leopold proclaimed his son as King of Spain in opposition to Duke of Anjou, who had been willed the Spanish throne. Philip became King Philip V, and that started the War of the Spanish Succession. Charles VI became Holy Roman Emperor in 1711, and, as Charles III, was King of Hungary from 1712 to 1740. He finally got around to renouncing his claim in 1714, bringing the war to an end. When he died in 1740, he was succeeded by his daughter, Maria Theresa.

Charles VI was so sure he would be King of Spain, he reportedly had 2 reales pieces minted in silver from 1701 to 1714. These coins are very scarce. The obverse has the arms of Charles (a lion climbing a slanted wall to the right), while the reverse has "CAROLUS" in monogram, with "III" in exergue (at the bottom). Other coinage was issued for this Hapsburg ruler by Goritz and Tyrol.

So much for Charles VI/Charles III - The Hapsburg.

Now, let's discuss our hero - Charles III, the Bourbon. He was born in 1716, the son of Philip V, King of Spain. He became Charles I, Duke of Parma, in 1731. It was in that capacity that he conquered the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies, which he ruled as King Carlos IV. In 1759, he became King of Spain, as Carolus III.

During his rule of Spain, Charles assisted agriculture and commerce, established military academies, strengthened the navy, reformed the fiscal administration, curbed the Inquisition, and expelled the Jesuits from Spain. His friendship with France and his dislike of Great Britian led to the Spanish-French alliance in 1779 in support of the American Revolution. History records that Charles III (or Carolus or Carlos) is universally regarded as the greatest of the Bourbon kings. His son, Carolus IV, succeeded him in 1788. That is a story in itself, for it was the start of the termination of Spain as a world power.

Just as Carolus III used the gold escudos with his legend, but the bust of Ferdinant VI, so Carolus IV used coinage of Carolus III. Many of the Carolus III bust coins were used by Carolus IV. The reason, supposedly, being that news was very slow in those days, and when Carolus III died in 1788, it took quite a long time for Carolus IV to learn he was the new king. While new coinage with the bust of the new ruler could be struck, the old coins of Carolus III were re-engraved with "CAROLUS IIII" in the legend but with the bust of Carolus III. Some legends were not changed and have the bust of Carolus III, but with dates of 1789.

Many silver and gold coins were struck in the New World, at the mints in Mexico, Colombia, Peru, Guatemala, Bolivia and Chile, while copper coins were struck in the Philippine Islands.

EDITOR

Sometime back in an issue of Texas Highways magazine, appeared a photo of the Littlefield Memorial Fountain at the University of Texas in Austin and mentioned Pompeo Coppini, a native of Moglia, Italy, as the sculptor. Other best known works of Coppini's are the statue of Jefferson Davis on the State Capitol grounds, and sculptures on the Alamo Cenotaph in San Antonio. In a later issue, our good friend, Louis R. Goodwin, longtime TNA member, called attention to another of Coppini's work of art in a letter to the Texas Highways editor. Quote: "In regard to the photo of Pompeo Coppini's Littlefield Memorial Fountain, here's another of Coppini's credits that many are familiar with: He prepared the models for the Texas Centennial 50-cent piece. The coin commemorated Texas independence in 1836. The first half dollars were coined in 1934 and the last in 1938. Fewer than 150,000 were minted, and since numismatists throughout the world purchased them, the coins are scarce. But they did help to publicize Texas internationally. (Signed) Louis R. Goodwin, Seguin." Louis has recently moved from Sequin to San Antonio. Welcome . . .

Very few collect the stone money of Yap but it makes for interesting research. The Stone Money Bank of Balabat contains 30 large, doughnut-shaped stones which are the traditional form of currency for the Yap Islands. Although the U.S. dollar is now in common use, stone money is still used for large purchases. Because of the size of the stones, there is no chance of them being stolen, and when ownership changes, the money stays in the bank. The value of the stone money is based not on size, but on the difficulty that was encountered in bringing each stone to Yap. Most of the stones came from the Palau islands, 275 miles away.

Interesting item: Harvard University, founded in 1636, once accepted Indian wampum beads as tuition payment. The beads were tiny white or purple seashells that had been worked into ornamental strings or belts . . . Did you know that the $3.00 gold piece was issued to make it easy to purchase one hundred 3-cent stamps? When the postal rates were changed that eliminated the $3.00 coin . . . GREAT BIG TEXAS-SIZE AUCTION

The Texas State Treasury Department is planning a great big auction this coming fall when unclaimed contents of safe-deposit boxes from San Antonio and other banks will be sold to the highest bidders.

For years bank officials have kept the contents of the boxes and could sell items legally after seven years, but they rarely did. Now, amendments to the state's unclaimed property laws require that banks turn over such property to the state, which can then sell it at auction and add the money to the available school fund.

The state's first auction will be after September 1, by which time state officials expect to have accumulated more than 2,000 safe-deposit boxes dating back as far as the early 1920s.

One such box contained a solid gold circle used in the practice of numerology appraised at $50,000; two gold Tiffany ashtrays, a gold 100-lira coin from Italy and two antique gold watches.

In addition, there were a number of silver currency certificates, gold chains, gold and silver coins and a stack of $100 bills.

HELLO SPORTS FANS!

Topical collecting is collecting coins based on the subject matter of the coin, and we sports fans have a wide variety of choices available.

You can collect sports events or you can collect stadiums. You might want to limit yourself to Olympic coins, silver coins or gold coins. There were even Olympic coins from ancient times.

Some varieties of sports coins are boxing, swimming, track and field, and skiing. One popular series is the World Cup Soccer coins issued by many Latin American countries.

Collecting sports coins combines the interest of numismatics and athletics.

The annual ANA convention held in San Diego this year just passed by. Perhaps those of us who were lucky enough to attend all or a part of it came home with some ideas that will benefit TNA.

This month is the Austin Coin Club Money Mart and the semi-annual meeting of TNA. This show is a very important one for us as TNA can map out some of the next year's plans. I trust all will be able to attend and bring your thinking caps as some of the special committees will need all the help they can get in the attempts to revise some of the out-moded rules under which we now operate.

A recent conversation with Al Loja, District VI governor, gave us some hope on the gold, silver and precious stone sales law which is pending. The law is still held in the committee and at this time is not scheduled to come out to the main body for any kind of action. But we must stand ready to move and move very swiftly when the time is ready. The potential harm to our hobby is there, even though at this time it is dormant. Our strength is not in force of arms but the united voices of the voters and the citizens who approve or disapprove of a thing.

PLEASE NOTE: The TNA Governing Board will convene in Austin for the mid-year business meeting. The session will be held at 9 a.m., September 18, at Quality Inn South during the annual Austin Coin Club Money Mart. All officers are urged to attend.

C. C. Andrews, ANA club representative, for Garland Coin Club, led a discussion period involving biographic sketches of the candidates for ANA elective offices, including a record of service to the association and to numismatics in general. Club members then decided which candidates were to be endorsed by the club.

Barney Welch served as moderator for a discussion on "The New July 1st IRS Ruling." Several members told of their "understandings and misunderstandings" of the new ruling. Barney stated that he had once again contacted the IRS Bureau in Dallas and asked for any information they could give him regarding the ruling and the answer he received was negative. The final agreement among members was that there is still much confusion and many features remain to be cleared.

Andrews conducted the auction and Randy Borland won the door prize. - Lucretia Johnson, Sec.

A games night and auction made up the programs for July meetings of Liberty Coin Club of Corpus Christi. At a recent meeting, David Luckstead spoke on the "Wealth of the World." He said that many in the United Nations believed that resources should be gathered together and divided equally. That if you have more than your share you are stealing. If you plant an orange tree in your back yard you are depriving others of their oranges. He said that the Ivory Coast believes that work, not money, makes a viable country. There are some who believe that the Gold Standard was invented by people or religions that didn't trust others.

All are reminded of the coin show planned for October 8-9 at Bayfront Plaza Convention Center in Corpus Christi. - Club Bulletin.

Also in 1862, the Internal Revenue Dept. was established. - Club Bulletin.

DISTRICT XIII —

Twenty five members and guests were present for the regular meeting of Wichita Falls Stamp & Coin Club with President Tom Eggleston presiding.

History of the motto "IN GOD WE TRUST" which is inscribed on all U.S. coins and currency, was told by Pauline Copelin.

The Reverend Mark H. Watkinson began it all when he wrote to Secretary of the Treasury suggesting the idea. Mr. Chase wrote to the director of the mint that such a device should be prepared as to inscribe some such motto on the coins. Finally in 1953, Matt H. Rothert began a campaign to have the motto on our paper money.

The first coin where the motto appeared was the two cent piece of 1864. Then it was on the eagle, double eagle and half eagle. In 1873, Congress said it should be on all coins "which shall admit it" but President Theodore Roosevelt in 1907 cancelled it because he thought it was sacriligous to have it on coins. Public demand brought it back and in 1955, President Eisenhower signed a bill saying that the inscription should appear on ALL U.S. coins and currency. Appearance on the currency was the result of a campaign by Rothert, well known numismatist.

Many individuals have worked to get the motto on our money and many more have worked to keep it there. Billions of our coins and currency are carrying the message in our pockets that what was true in 1861 is just as true today.

After a coffee break, door prizes were awarded and an auction of coins and stamps was held. - Pauline Copelin, Sec.

DISTRICT XIV —

Ada Lee Chisum
Governor

Bert Wahl reported on his vacation spent in New Zealand and Australia. Cross gave an explanation on how bullion weights are computed with reference to coins.

Virginia Yoder won the door prize and Horacio Fernandez conducted the auction for the 14 members present. - Ada Lee Chisum, Gov. Dist. 14.

DISTRICT XV —

Jerry A. Williams
Governor

Glen Dowden presided at the July meeting of Greater Port Arthur Coin Club with 13 members present.

A report was given by coin show committee member Linda Dowden on the availability of locations for the next coin show in March 1984. Steve Pecora reported that George May donated some copies of TNA NEWS to the newly formed club library. Door prize winners were Linda Dowden, Russell Tritico, Steve Pecora, George May, Gabbie Rojo and James Rodriguez.

Pecora gave a program on good luck symbols including four-leaf clovers, the horse shoe, rabbit's foot and various coins and tokens. Highlighted was the most hated good luck symbol, the swastika. It is at a 45 degree angle and all four bars are evenly bent to give the symbol a "turning" look. In World War II, Hitler used this design for the Nazi flag. To him, this symbol was a sign of dignity, not good luck. On tokens, it was reversed in design: the right-handed swastika was a symbol of the rotation of the sun (Solar Symbol) and the left-handed swastika stands for night. - William H. Stein.

* * * * * *

Glen Dowden was in charge of the program at the meeting of Greater Beaumont Coin Club and he talked on Canadian coins. Prestige sets, commemorative dollars, $100 gold pieces, proof-like sets and uncirculated sets were some Glen displayed. He talked about different varieties, mirror finish and packaging of the older sets.

Winning door prizes were Bill Stein, John Brown Jr., George May, A. M. Dunlap and Russell Tritico. May led the auction. - Linda Dowden, Sec.

* * * * * *

Steve Pecora gave the program at the recent meeting of Greater Orange Coin Club before a group of 18 members. He talked about coin collecting and cautioned everyone to collect only the very best coins that will increase in value. He spoke specifically on the evolution of the "penny" and that 1857 was the first year for mintage of the small size one cent piece. Steve discussed the changes in cents up to the present time.

Door prize winners were Becky Scott, Glenn Dowden, Lucy Canter, Johnny Mabry and Pecora. Dewey Scott was in charge of the auction. -Lucy Canter, Sec.

arrive, curiosity seekers had absconded with countless numbers of coins.

There were 2,000,000 1896 large cents minted and even today this coin is easily available in the New Brunswick area. One of the varieties of the 1896 large cent is the coin with the "far" 6. Located in Moncton is the famous "Magnetic Hill" where gravity plays many tricks. There are those in the area who believe the fable that when the coins hit the ice, the magnetic shock could have been responsible for the 6 separating from the 9 and moving to the right. Who is to say?
